

OPERA ETIQUETTE

Opera is for all ages to enjoy! – Opera is full of emotion, passion, human conflict and discovery. Whether it is your first time, or a die-hard opera fan, you will have a great time. Especially with the invention of the ‘Supertitle,’ where the text is projected above the stage on a screen, you are able to follow everything being sung on stage. All operas are performed in their original language.

What to Wear: Many people think of a night at the opera as a glamorous event and an excuse to bring out the fancy attire. But, it is also acceptable to dress comfortably and be you. If a sequined dress or a tux isn’t your thing, come in whatever you think is appropriate for an evening out. For dress rehearsals, the casual attire that students wear to school is perfectly acceptable. A light jacket is suggested because the theatre is air-conditioned.

When to Arrive: It is always a good idea to arrive early to the opera to ensure you are able to find your seat and get settled before the performance begins. The orchestra may be tuning, so it is important that you find a seat as quickly and quietly as possible. If you are late, you may miss the first overture or even the first act! Don’t forget to use the restroom before the opera begins, as the first act is often one hour in length. If you are attending a student matinee or evening dress rehearsal performance, be sure to read the study guide that is available on our website to familiarize yourself with the synopsis of the opera since there are not programs available.

Noise: Remember that this is a live performance and unlike many staged performances, the opera singers do not use microphones. This makes it essential to wait until intermission to unwrap gum/candy, talk to your neighbor or use electronic devices that may distract others. Be sure to turn off cell phone and pagers.

Applause: It is acceptable to applaud after an overture or aria in the middle of a performance. Applaud when the performance moves you. If you are not sure when it is appropriate for applause, follow the lead of the rest of the audience. When you feel comfortable at a performance you may show your appreciation to the performers by shouting “Bravo!” for a male performer, “Brava!” for a female performer, or “Bravi!” for an ensemble.

Special Notes for Attending a Student Matinee or Evening Dress Rehearsal:

1. The production team will be sitting at their table in the theater. Because this is a 'dress rehearsal', the production team will be quietly talking and taking notes, and may even move around the empty seats to check things on the stage; this is not an invitation for you to move or talk. They need silence to do their job.
2. If you are bringing a lunch or backpack to the student matinee, an usher will direct you where to leave it in the lobby: no food or drinks are allowed in the theatre.

Opera San José's educational outreach programs are made possible in part by a grant from

City of San José

and by the donors at OPERAFEST, as well as financial support from these corporations.